

May 13, 2007 - Sixth Sunday of Easter

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you." John 14:27

† Servant Leader † POPE BENEDICT - PEACEMAKER

Pope Benedict XVI constantly demonstrates his determination to be a peacemaker. That role seemed to be suggested by his adoption of the name Benedict, reminiscent of Pope Benedict XV.

Benedict has put behind him the old saw about the Vatican moving at a pace of centuries. The successful visit to Turkey won over ordinary Turks, and Benedict's time with Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew moved the ecumenical dialogue with the Orthodox Church beyond the tensions that held back progress for the last decade and a half.

In redirecting Islamic relations, Benedict had to resist those in the Vatican and Catholic pundits close to it who were pushing, as John Allen of the The National Catholic Reporter described it, a "hawkish," confrontational policy toward Islam, in contrast to the late John Paul II's "dovish" encouragement of interreligious dialogue. No doubt there are shifts in the Vatican's Islamic policy, most notable the demand for "reciprocity" - that is, the granting of the same religious rights to Christians in Muslim countries that Muslims enjoy in Christian ones. But with his silent meditation facing Mecca, at Istanbul's Blue Mosque, Benedict put the hawkish policy proposals, and certainly rumors of his own discomfort, to rest.

In his annual message for the World Day of Peace on Jan, 1, Pope Benedict once again underscored the need for what he calls "a dialogue of cultures" "between the followers of different religions and between believers and nonbelievers," rooted in "the grammar written on human hearts by the Divine Creator." Fundamental to procuring peace, he noted, are two values: respect for life and respect for religious freedom. The absence of peace is shown, he observed, in the way Christians and people of other faiths are prevented from "publicly and freely expressing their religious convictions."

The pope observes that, "the international community must re-affirm international humanitarian law and apply it to present-day situations of armed conflict, including those not currently provided for by international law." The spirit of organized conventions, as well as the letter, need to be observed. Likewise, Benedict contends the struggle against terrorism demands "careful reflection of the ethical limits restricting the use of modern methods of guaranteeing internal security."

On nuclear peril the Pope writes, "Unfortunately, threatening clouds continue to gather on humanity's horizon. The way to ensure a future for everyone is found not only in international accords for the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons, but also in the determined commitment to seek their reduction and definitive dismantling." By stressing nuclear arms reduction and abolition, Pope Benedict places responsibility not just on non-nuclear and aspiring nuclear powers, like the United States, Russia and China, and the un-admitted ones, like Israel, to eliminate their nuclear arsenals. All in all, Benedict seems to be walking steadily along the peacemaking paths blazed by his predecessors.

CHURCH SIGN – SOON & VERY SOON!

Hopefully you have noticed some progress on the installation of our new Parish Sign on the grounds in front of the church. Just a reminder that some of the cost of the sign and installation still needs to be covered. Please consider making a contribution to this much-needed addition to our parish grounds. Please call the Parish Office if you can help. We are truly grateful to those who have already given and to those who will contribute to make this sign possible.

Today's reading from Revelation offers a vision of the City of God, the new Jerusalem. "But," the bishops' pastoral on stewardship reminds us, "that 'life to come' is in continuity with this present life through the human goods, the worthy human purposes, which people foster now."

Holy Family School's Class of 2007 begins the march toward graduation this Friday, May 18, at the 10 a.m. Student Body Mass. The highlight of this liturgy is the traditional "Passing of the Light" ceremony when each graduate presents a candle to a seventh grader to symbolize the responsibility of the Class of 2008 to guide the student body next year. Every class will salute the Class of 2007 on Tuesday, May 22, at the Gift of Song Assembly, and the eighth graders will enjoy their last field trip as a class on Friday, May 25, when they go to Six Flags Marine World. The schoolwide Awards Assembly, when each student who has participated in a school activity is recognized, will be Tuesday, May 22. Thursday, May 31, Graduation Day, will finally come, and the Class of 2007 will start the day with the Honors Assembly at 9:30 a.m. in the Holy Family Community Center, followed by a brunch hosted by the Class of 2008 for the graduates, their parents, and grandparents. Pomp and Circumstance will begin the final march up the aisle at 6 p.m. that night, and the faculty, staff, and administration will bid a very loving farewell to this fine class!
