"Fill us at daybreak with your kindness, that may shout for joy and gladness all our days." Psalm 90:14

MORE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: A priest once said, "We can do without the Bible, but we cannot do without the church." What could he have meant?

Answer: The church certainly existed before the New Testament was completed. Many Christians were born, lived and died before the last book of the Bible was even written, somewhere at least 60 or 70 years after Jesus died. The Bible was not solidified in its present combination of books until centuries later.

The statement that the church could do without the Bible is, in my view, at least ambiguous. In a way, of course, it is right. Theoretically the church could do without the sacraments of baptism, penance, holy orders and possibly even the Eucharist. Who are we to say that the church could not have been formed in a variety of other ways than Jesus actually arranged?

The church which really exists, however, is unthinkable without all of these elements and it is just as unthinkable without the Bible. The living community of faith with its leaders (particularly the pope and other bishops) is the living carrier of the message and life of Christ to the world until the end of time. There is one sense, then, in which this living family of Christ will always be the final interpreter of the biblical word of God. It is equally true, however, that Scripture enshrines the teachings of the Lord and of the apostles with a special clarity and universality, so that it will be for all time the norm against which the church measures all its actions and its faith.

Whatever we propose as "might have been," the real church would soon be lost without Scripture. This is why the church has always venerated the Bible just as she venerates the body of Christ. "From the table of both the word of God and the body of Christ she unceasingly receives and offers to the faithful the bread of life, especially in the sacred liturgy" (Dogmatic Constitution on Divine Revelation of Vatican II). The council document goes on to say that "all the preaching of the church must be nourished and ruled by sacred Scripture."

With this view of Scripture, it is possible to understand how the Vatican Council says, "It is clear that sacred tradition, sacred Scripture and the teaching authority of the church, in accord with God's most wise design, are so linked and joined together that one cannot stand without the others. All together and each in its own way under the action of the one Holy Spirit contribute effectively to the salvation of souls." (No.10)

Question: We are told that the Bible, the Old and New Testament, is "normative" for Christian belief. What does that mean?

Answer: Catholics, and I think other Christians also, accept certain truths or doctrines that are not found stated in the Bible, for example the Assumption and the Immaculate Conception. If that is true, how can we say the Bible is the "norm" for our religion?

The Constitution on Divine Revelation, promulgated at Vatican Council II, affirmed that the church has always, and will always, regard the Scriptures, along with sacred tradition, as the supreme rule of faith.

"All the preaching of the Church," It claims, "must be nourished and ruled by sacred Scripture." The Bible, in other words, is a controlling presence in our understanding and reception of God's revelation, what God wished to teach for our salvation. (Par. 21) This is what is meant by the Scriptures being normative for Christian belief. In a somewhat shorthand way, it means that no truly Christian teaching can contradict the Bible, which is not the same, however, as saying that every authentic Christian belief must be found in the Bible.

If the Scriptures are, as we believe them to be, the word of God transmitted to us in human language under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, then those Scriptures are without error. Properly interpreted, there can be no contradiction between the Scriptures and any authoritative teaching of the church, which by definition we believe would be inspired by that same Spirit.

Since holy Scriptures are written under the direction of the Holy Spirit, we believe that they must also be read and interpreted under the Spirit's guidance. Three criteria are generally indicated to guarantee that kind of interpretation: First, the interpretation must reflect the unity and content of the whole of the Bible. Second, it must be in accord, in harmony, with the living tradition of the whole church, as the Holy Spirit inspires and supports it down through the centuries, And third, the interpretation must respect what is called the "analogy of faith," the coherence and harmony which exists between the different teachings of the faith. Again, one Christian teaching cannot contradict another teaching, or at least one of them must be wrong.

Something the same can be said for other truths about which someone may object. "Where do you find that in the Bible?" If it does not contradict what is in the Bible, and if it generally fulfills those criteria for interpretation – in other words, if it is coherent with other teachings of faith, consistent with the living tradition of Christianity, and does not conflict with the content and unity of the Bible – then a particular teaching may be accepted without violating the normative role sacred Scripture plays in the Christian religion. This, of course, has happened frequently in the history of Christianity.

The explanation of the place of Scripture in the church may be found a bit more fully In the Vatican II Constitution mentioned above (especially sections 12 and 21), and the article on sacred Scripture in the Catechism of the Catholic Church.

PRIESTS RETIREMENT COLLECTION NEXT WEEKEND

Next weekend, there will be a second collection - the Diocesan Collection for Priests Retirement. This is a small but practical way for people in the parishes to thank our priests for their long and loving service to the diocese. Please consider making a donation. Special envelopes are available.

STEWARDSHIP IN SCRIPTURE

"The one who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and the one who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work."

2 Corinthians 9:6-8

"From everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required; and from the one to whom much has been entrusted, even more will be demanded."

Luke 12:48:

"Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God."

Jesus tells the crowd that only those who renounce all of their possessions can be His disciples. Is He truly asking us to give up everything? Perhaps instead He is trying to help us see that everything we think we own is really a gift from God. Good stewards know that and strive to use those gifts accountably.

Holy Family School

Holy Family School's Elective Program began the 2007-2008 year with two additions to the popular junior high curriculum. Digital Photography, taught by Mrs. Gerry Larrea, combines instruction in photography as an art form with lessons in the technology of twenty-first century photography. Gourmet Cooking, taught by Chef Anoud Zaki, emphasizes a multisensory approach to culinary arts and has the goal of producing a gourmet dinner in late spring. Other classes are drama, painting, dance, musical theater, electronics, games of strategy, biology, cross-age tutoring strategies, yoga, and origami. All groups will participate in a culminating event in April 2008.

CONSTRUCTION ZONE - OLD AUBURN ROAD

Sacramento Regional County Sanitation District and County Sanitation District I have started construction on sewer system improvements in Citrus Heights. Construction is taking place along Old Auburn Road from Sylvan to Sunrise for approximately the next six months. This schedule could be delayed for unforeseen reasons.

Construction Hours:

7 a.m. - 8 p.m. Monday - Friday 8 a.m. - 8 p.m. Saturdays
*Certain exceptions will apply

Two-way traffic will be maintained at most times. However, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. materials unloading operations are allowed to take place. At those times the east or west-bound available lanes may be closed for 30 minute intervals, allowing traffic both ways alternating through one lane.

The project team will work diligently to minimize disruptions. However, access to residences, businesses and schools could be impacted during construction.

Pedestrian access will be provided at all times. Pedestrians are asked to observe the sidewalk closure signs and proceed only in designated areas through the construction zones. Children should stay away from construction areas and parents, guardians and school teachers are encouraged to talk to them about the dangers of construction zones.

If you have any comments or concerns regarding the construction, please call the toll-free, 24-hour project hotline at (866) 479-0600.
